Banned Books Week

by Alma Ravenell, Public Services Librarian

Each year libraries all over the nation celebrate “Banned Books Week” (BBW); our library is no different.

This exciting event focuses on reminding us that not only is reading a joy, but also that choosing what you want to read is a privilege we often take for granted. This week is set aside each year to remind us all that books are still being challenged and banned all over the world!

Our freedom to read should not be taken lightly. If you agree, make sure to mark your calendar for September 27th thru October 3rd.

At Muntz Library we will be hosting several events to recognize BBW. Please see the activities below:

- A display in honor of the event will be showcased.
- A debate and forum will be held in FAC 1009 on Sept 29, 5-6:30 pm. Refreshments will follow.
- An online symposium - “Robert Cormier: Censorship and Intolerance” - will be held on Thursday, October 1st - 11am-4pm. Interested persons may join a group in Library 202.

These events, along with the usual Muntz Library zeal for our “Freedom to Read” will be featured during BBW.

FROM THE DIRECTOR: What's going on in the Library?

Library Changes by Vandy Dubre, Librarian

No doubt, if you have been in the Library lately, you have noticed a few changes. As your needs change, the Library seeks to address those needs. We are currently working through modifications to the third and fourth floors, addressing furniture, sound, and space needs.

The third floor is now a SOCIAL GREEN ZONE for group study. We moved the print books to one side of the floor, opening up the other end for more group spaces and new furniture. These new spaces will have more rolling white boards and two walls which have been transformed into white boards.

The fourth floor Periodicals area is now the QUIET BLUE ZONE. Since the third floor was open to the noise of the stairs and the group study rooms, we have moved the Quiet Study area to the periodicals room where the sound levels will be more conducive to quiet study.

More changes are coming and we ask that you pardon the transition. It is all to better serve your evolving needs.

Jeanne Standley, Executive Director of the Library will return in our next issue, but did request that this piece be written in her absence.

Without libraries what have we? We have no past and no future.— Ray Bradbury

What 's your reading pleasure?

by Jan Harp

Looking for something fun to read? Check out our Bestseller Collection of current fiction and non-fiction located in the lounge area of the second floor. There is also a small display as you step off the elevator on the fourth floor. We update our collection monthly, based on your requests, and what titles are hot.

Harper Lee's long awaited novel, Go Set a Watchman is now available. You might want to check out Stephen King's new trilogy. The first two books, Mr. Mercedes and Finders Keepers are out and ready for you to read. It is classic Stephen King and has been compared to his novel Misery.

Whether you are a mystery fan or prefer something lighter we've got you covered. We carry everything from the mysteries of James Patterson and the scary stuff of Dean Koontz and Stephen King to book series such as The Mortal Instruments or Nora Robert's latest novel. If you don't see what you want, you can always send a request through your library account. Let us know what you want to read.

Books Still Take Us Places

I have an apron that I acquired at my first librarian position many years ago. It reads: "Books can take you anywhere!" And you know what? They really do!

I know many of us get caught up in TV shows, movies, and even the internet, but in my opinion, books are still the best source of entertainment that an individual can have!

It's like having a plane ticket handy all the time! A book can take me all over the world, and into worlds I never knew could exist in anyone's mind. Personally, if I hear of a movie being produced that is based on a book, I prefer to see the movie first, so I won't be disappointed. Ninety percent of the time, the book will be better than the film.

Summer Displays at Muntz Library

Isabel Altamirano, Librarian
(Outreach)

This year marks the 150th Anniversary of Juneteenth, which celebrates when Texas slaves first learned of their freedom by the reading of the Emancipation Proclamation in Galveston. The exhibit had historical quotes and how the holiday is celebrated across the nation.

(Organized by Alma Ravenell and Vicki Betts)

Another exhibit featured 21 Issues of the 21st Century. Based on James Martin's The Meaning of the 21st Century and the United Nations Environment Programme's 21 Issues for the 21st Century: Results of the Foresight Process on Emerging Environmental Issues.

(Organized by Isabel Altamirano, Poster Designed by Ann Darnley)

Library Read In

By Vandy Dubre, Librarian

On June 23rd, the library was invaded by little guests and riveting readers. In an effort to illustrate the power and fun of the written word, children from the Stepping Stone Summer program visited the library for a day of story time - including stories about Ancient Egypt. Children also had an opportunity to write their own story!

In Memory of: Elizabeth "Libby" Mathis

This past summer, we lost not only a colleague but a dear friend. A 2004 graduate of UT Tyler, Libby worked as a Library Assistant in Circulation. She was truly dedicated to her job and her positive attitude and willingness to help others will be missed both by library staff and patrons. Despite her illness, she continued to work and possessed a great strength that was inspiring to others. She will be missed greatly.

"We remember those we have lost with great fondness."

Famous Librarians

The Age of Adeline - One of the Spring 2015 most anticipated movies, featured a librarian as the main character.

Jessamyn West (1968 - Present) is an American librarian. She became well known because of her library blog: "librarian.net". Via the blog, she shares unexpected views of the library profession.

Arna Botemps (1902-1973) was an American poet, novelist and librarian. He was part of the Harlem Renaissance movement.

WHAT WE'RE DOING...

April "Borromeo" Stiles (Outreach and Reference Specialist) supported two poster presentations during the Spring semester. Mrs. Stiles is now Graphic Designer for Smith County Chronicles. She will also offer a library orientation class to the UT Tyler Intensive English Language Institute students this fall.

She attended and presented a poster at the TLA Conference. Ms. Standley attended the ALA Conference in San Francisco. Ms. Standley helped organize the East Texas Book Festival in Tyler this year. She will attend the TCAL meeting this September in Austin, Texas.

Open Access at UT Tyler

Terra Bianchi, University Archivist

Open Access is the free, immediate, online availability of research articles, including the rights to use articles fully in the digital environment. It increases visibility of scholarly work, prevents users from having to pay for research articles, and accelerates discovery because researchers don't have to wait for access to works. Open Access also helps to prevent authors from signing away their copyright to publishers.

To aid in the access of UT Tyler scholarly work, the UT Tyler Institutional Repository \(IR\) (<http://dspace.uttyler.edu/xmlui/>) is a digital service that stores, preserves, and displays documents and publications of our University's faculty, staff, and students. Recently, faculty across UT Tyler have become interested in supporting more access and visibility of their work. By adding their scholarly work to the IR, our faculty are ensuring that their research is available to the widest audiences.

If you are interested in learning more about Open Access or the types of materials allowed for deposit into the IR, please contact us at archivist@uttyler.edu or (903) 565-5849.

Collections Update

Rebecca Fernandez, ERM Librarian

Muntz Library recently finished a major weeding project. Weeding a collection in a library is always a sensitive matter. Seeing a book collection shrink can be somewhat shocking to the patrons of the Library. However, there are benefits from weeding a collection.

Weeding a library collection is the process of selectively removing materials from the shelves. Criteria is established and materials that fit that criteria are identified for removal.

The criteria used for the recent weeding project was a combination of publication date, lack of use over a period of years (no checkouts and no in-house use), and changes to curriculum. Once removed from the shelves, weeded materials are withdrawn from the Library catalog and then offered to other libraries and/or non-profit organizations, if they are willing to pay the shipping.

One of the benefits of weeding a collection is the opportunity to acquire more current resources in support of the ever changing curriculum. It has also allowed Muntz Library to repurpose half of the 3rd floor for much needed group study and project work while moving the Quiet Study area to the 4th floor.

Collection Development in a library is a constantly moving target. The collection of an academic library can be especially challenging to establish and maintain. Providing the necessary materials to support the curriculum is a balancing act aided by selective weeding of a standing collection.

Library Grad and Student Workers

Some of the library's best resources hail from our campus. They are our student workers. Without them, we would not be able to provide the level of service needed for our users. This year's staff include:

Grad Students

Joseph Watt and Gavin Sanders - Reference Services Mary "M.E." Smith - University Archives

Student Workers

Antonio "Tony" Sanchez, Cree Summerville, and Ki'arra Semien - Circulation Services

Percy Kannarapu and Harini Ramasahayam - Collections Services

Please join the Library in welcoming this most essential group of students!

New Staff Member

Meet Isloma "Nora" Anazia. She is our new part time staff member.

Nora will primarily work in the Library Circulation Department on weekends. We are very pleased to have an individual of Nora's caliber on our team.

A One Touch Studio in the Library

Soon library users will be able to do their recording projects in the Library. It is anticipated that the room will be available before the fall semester ends.

FOLLOW THE LIBRARY:

Your Library is dedicated to providing the best service possible. One of the services we provide is help with your research.

Doing college level research is hard, especially with the internet giving you access to both credible and unreliable information. Even if you are not familiar with higher level research through databases before, we can help you.

To quote Neil Gaman, "Google can bring you back 100,000 answers, but a librarian can bring you back the RIGHT one." That statement summons up the challenges in doing research today.

The internet has made research both easier in terms of physical leg work but more challenging in terms of trustworthy sources and verification of facts. So how do you navigate all of these sources? How do you create the right search that brings back to best results so you don't spend weeks weeding through junk websites that Google retrieves? Why doesn't your professor want you to use Wikipedia? Well, to help answer all these questions, your library has not only friendly librarians, but "subject specialist" librarians.

These librarians, (or librarian liaisons), are responsible for taking care of all the department library needs. They work closely with your faculty, the subject databases, and the subject itself to help you, and your faculty, with research.

Yes, you could spend weeks plunking through Google results and cobble together a decent paper. However, wouldn't it be easier, faster, and get better results to talk to a person whose job is to know how to do research in your subject?

Look at it this way, maybe spending an hour with this librarian can help you find specific research on the topic you are looking for right now. At the same time you will learn how to do basic and subject specific research. This ensures that every research paper, poster presentation, and future project, will be easier for you to complete. That is an hour well spent! Of course, it doesn't have to mean an hour of your time every time. You can always stop by, chat, or email, your librarian with a specific question...any time.
